distance at right angles from the railroad tracks, and Peoples decided to try his chances there for bandages. Between him and the friendly beacon the roar of waters beat on his ears, but he started in the direction of the light and soon came to a swollen stream. Despite the inky darkness, he located a frail foot-bridge and started across it.

When he was midway of the structure, which turned out to be a log, it broke under him and he was plunged into water over his head. But with his sound arm he clung to the log, uttered his first prayer since leaving home, and finally reached shore.

Then with his one good arm he pulled himself up on the bank, still headed toward the beckoning light. As he released the broken log it gave him a bad scalp wound.

Reaching the house from which the light shone, Peoples called lustily. The first to respond to his yells was a monster bulldog, which bounded over the fence separating him from the house. With his two legs and one arm Peoples says he fought a "living death" with the dog, which at times sank his teeth into his legs.

The commotion, however, aroused the dog's owner, P. D. Hensley. The dog was finally forced to release his intended victim and Peoples was taken inside the house to receive first aid. He explained his plight to Mr. Hensley, and the latter took up a collection among his neighbors which will defray People's carfare home on a Pullman.

DIVORCE ROW LOOMS IN DENVER CONCLAVE

Sharp Division Seen in Plan to Modify Episcopal Ruling on Re-marriages.

CONTEST ALSO ON MISSAL

Convention, Opening Wednesday, Gives Promise of Rifts Between High Church Deputies and Liberals.

When the fiftieth triennial general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church meets in Denver, Col., beginning Wednesday, the subject that overtops all other in its program will be the movement to modify prevailing restrictions on the remarriage of divorced persons.

Second, probably in holding the attention of the bishops and the clerical and lay deputies will be a proposed condemnation of the Amerian Missal, issued by a group of Anglo-Catholics, including a number of bishops, for use as a substitute for the present service of the celebration of the Holy Communion, and charged by the evangelical or liberal group, with being an imitation of the Roman Catholic mass.

A third high spot in the convention, which is expected to last through the month or later, probably will be the presentation of the report of the Joint Commission on Faith and Order, of which Bishop William T. Manning of New York is the chairman. The report recommends "hearty endorsement" of a plan to hold a second world conference on Christian unity in 1937 following up the work begun at the first conference on this subject in Lausanne, Switzerland, a few years ago. The report indicates that the meeting place will again be Lausanne. Bishop Manning will not be present in person to read his report as his physician has told him to remain at his Summer home, Somesville, Me., until Oct. 1.

It is virtually certain that the Most Rev. James De Wolf Perry of Providence, R. I., will be re-elected Presiding Bishop of the Church. He was elected by the House of Bishops at a special meeting in Chicago to fill out the unexpired term, which is for six years. of the Most Rev. John Gardner Murray of Baltimore who died suddenly two years ago.

The convention will open with a public ritualistic service, which will begin with a procession of the bishops, of whom more than 100 are expected to attend.

The opening sermon will be preached by the Right Rev. Michael Bolton Furse, Lord Bishop of St. Albans, England, who has been sent here as the representative of the Angelican Church.

Two Houses to Hold Sessions.

The Houses of Bishops will meet under one roof and the House of Clerical and Lay Deputies under another. Bishops, by reason of their office, are deputies. The House of Deputies is composed of four clerical and four lay deputies from each diocese in the country. Regardless of its size or importance, each diocese has the same number of representatives. The deputies are elected at the annual meeting of their respective dioceses. There must be concurrent action by both houses to make any new legislation effective.

Few expect that either the majority or the minority report of the joint commission on marriage and divorce as they stand at present will be adopted. The chairman of the commission is the Right Rev. Herman Page of Detroit, Bishop of Michigan. The fact that the commission itself could not agree is said so to weaken the report as to exclude the confidence of either group. The commission was appointed six years ago at New Orleans.

The majority report provides that if the civil court permits the proposed marriage where one of the parties has been divorced, whether or not it be the guilty party in the case of a divorce for infidelity, "a minister of the church may solemnize the marriage, provided it shall be within the discretion of any minister to decline to solemnize any marriage."

The minority report provides that "a minister of the Church" may not under such circumstances solemnize the marriage, but that a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church may "bless" the union after the couple have been married by a civil authority. It further provides that if such couples are married by civil authority no impediment shall exist to their membership in the Church.

The majority and minority reports, both of which have been widely condemned, are substitutes for the first report of the special commission, which was made public last April.

Present Law Regarding Marriages.

The present law of the Protestant Episcopal Church rules that no clergyman can officiate at the wedding of a couple one of whom is the guilty party in a divorce granted because of infidelity. It provides also that an Episcopal clergyman can officiate at a wedding of the innocent party only after the elapse of at least one year and the Bishop of the diocese has given his consent after he and the chancellor of the diocese have seen the divorce papers.

So far fifty-two bishops have gone on record as being opposed to the use of the American Missal. The Rev. Dr. Alexander G. Cummins, rector of Christ Church, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., will leave for Denver this afternoon armed with a petition against permitting the use of the Missal in any church of the communion. It is signed by 6,972 church members, representing 424 parishes in sixty-one dioceses.

Wickersham Party Leaves Today.

George W. Wickersham, chairman of the National Committee on Law Enforcement and Observance, and one of the four lay deputies from the Diocese of New York, will leave for Denver at 4 P. M. today, accompanied by his wife, two Bishops and a number of clerical and lay deputies and their wives. The prelates are the Right Rev. John I. Blair Larned, Bishop Suffragan of the Diocese of Long Island, and the Right Rev. William M. M. Thomas, Bishop of Southern Brazil. Others in the party will be the Very Rev. George P. T. Sargent, dean of the Cathedral of the Incarnation, Garden City, Long Island; the Rev. and Mrs. Arthur M. Sherman of Wuchang, China; the Rev. Charles H. Collett of Demarest, N. J.; the Rev. Dr. Wallace J. Gardner of Brooklyn; Samuel Thorne, another lay deputy from the Diocese of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Origen S. Seymour, William M. Baldwin and Frank Gulden, all of the Diocese of Long Island.
